"Business."

Wednesday Evening, July 10.—The New York stock market had a weak tone throughout the session, closing 1/2 to 5 points net lower.

Money on call was strong at 5 to 8 per cent., ruling at 6. Time loans were very strong at 5 to 6. Sterling exchange was weak.

The Chicago wheat market was easy, the September delivery closing at a net loss of 1/2 to 3/4. Corn was a shade higher. Oats were up 1/4.

The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 1 to 5 points, was subjected to considerable selling and closed 30 to 35 points net lower.

The Chicago cattle market was steady, a shade lower, the hog market weak and 5 to 6 lower and the sheep market weak to a shade lower.

Lessons of the Storm.

The severe thunderstorm which swept over Louisville Tuesday afternoon, although of but fifteen minutes' duration, wrought more damage than any since the tornado of March 27, 1894. It was not attended with a loss of life or property comparable to the latter, since but one person was killed and the injury to property estimated at $100,000, while seventy-six persons perished in the tornado and property to the value of $2,150,000 was destroyed. It came at 8 o'clock at night, without warning, as did the late storm, passing fortunately through a sparsely settled portion of the city from southwest to northeast, with an average width of four blocks. Had it passed half a mile farther to the east it would have included the most thickly settled, as well as the principal business portion of the city, and the destruction of life and property would have been increased manifold. Its duration did not exceed fifteen minutes.

The late storm, while more destructive in some portions of the city than others, embraced nearly its whole area. The unroofing of several buildings, the fall of several smokestacks and chimneys and the flooding of cellars by the fall of 67 of an inch of rain in a few minutes, constituted the chief damage to houses, there having been no collapse either of public or private buildings, as in the tornado. But in some other respects it was attended with features of a damaging and dangerous nature, not heretofore experienced in the city. Coming from a quarter little north of west, it swept broadside across the city with a velocity of sixty-five miles an hour, felling shade trees across the trolley wires and putting out of commission, with scarce an exception, all the street cars traversing the residence portion of the city, many of the streets and, in some instances, the sidewalks being rendered impassable until they were cleared of the obstructions. An examination of these blocked thoroughfares could not but excite surprise that no deaths resulted to persons who happened to be on the street when the storm burst or brought to a halt by the breaking of the circuit.

The storm has brought with it several lessons vitally affecting the city and its people, which ought not to be neglected. The advent of these sudden tornadoes and windstorms cannot be foreseen in time to take the necessary precaution against their effects, but much of this can be done by proper study of the question to prevent such great menace to life and danger to the safety to the city under present conditions. In the first place trees of excessive height and diameter should be eliminated. One of the fallen trees was a cottonwood nearly four feet in diameter and ninety or one hundred feet in height, in Guthrie street, running east and west, which fell nearly parallel to the street, doing no damage, when it had fallen across the street it might have cost several lives and done other serious damage. There are others of the same kind near by and many as dangerous in other parts of the city. Many of the fallen trees prove to be hollow or decayed inwardly. A careful inspection should be made of shade trees and all such, as well as dead trees, of which there are a large number in every part of the city on the sidewalks and adjacent lots, should be removed. These are precautions which should be taken for the safety of the life and limb of the people.

But the lesson enforced upon the city by the storm, the observance of which is vital to its progress and the protection of its property, was developed by the storm in a practical way, far more forcibly than could have been or can be stated in words. Not only was the telephone service suspended, in consequence of the overhead wires being broken by the falling trees, but the fire alarm system was similarly paralyzed. Fortunately there was no fire, and the suspension of these various public utilities only entailed personal inconvenience to individuals. But the paralysis of the fire alarm system entailed a menace to the city which cannot be easily measured. It might have led to a conflagration like that of Chicago, Baltimore or San Francisco. These public utilities to be of full value to a city, as elements of prosperity and progress, must be continuous and not subject to such unforeseen and unpreventable freaks of the elements as that we have just experienced. The only safe remedy is in placing the wires underground. The objection to the pole or other overhead system for aesthetic reasons is trifling and trifling, for to grave a subject. Security to public life and property and uninterrupted telephone and telegraphic communication require that the wires should be put underground as is now done in all cities of the rank to which Louisville aspires. A start has been made and should be pressed with more energy.

Philippine Independence.
The North American Review contains a strong article entitled "Philippine Independence—Why?" from the pen of Mr. James H. Blount, of Georgia. He is a son of former Congressman Blount, who was Special Commissioner to Hawaii in 1893, and was often called "Paramount Blount." The writer of this article served as a volunteer officer in Cuba during the Spanish War, and in the Philippines in a like capacity from 1899 to 1901. From 1901 to 1906 he was Judge of the Court of First Instance in the Philippines, finally resigning on account of ill health. It appears from these facts that he writes of Philippine affairs with the knowledge acquired by what is, for an American, a long residence there, with excellent opportunities given by his official positions to learn the sentiments and condition of the people.

Mr. Blount says "this paper is written in the earnest hope of aiding in convincing a sufficient number of the leading men of both the great political parties that we ought to retire from the Philippines, as soon as a decent native government can be gotten under way." There is thus no mistake about his position, and he defends the thesis laid down with great moderation of statement, with perfect courtesy for opposing opinion, and at the same time with a strength of logic which will give anybody who undertakes to overrule it a good deal of trouble.

Mr. Blount's paper opens with a reference to an article of his in the Review January 18 last, entitled, "Philippine Independence—When?" From this he quotes a passage which says in substance, that if these strong and able men, familiar with insular conditions, were told by the President, with the authority of Congress, to go to the Philippines set up a respectable native government in ten years, and then come away, they could and would do it, and the government would be a success. This article of January 18 has been three times reprinted and has attracted a good deal of attention, despite the feeble interest that is manifested in Philippine affairs.

The reasons given by Mr. Blount for Philippine independence are of two kinds. Those that suggest themselves from the Oriental end of the line, and those to be found at the American end. Among the former he mentions the failure of the civil authorities, for reasons connected with American politics, to call upon the army promptly to suppress a blood insurrection in 1904, because such action might have prejudiced the party in power at the presidential election. He insists with reason that it is the first duty of a Government to protect life and property from day to day as far as possible. When the Philippines are said to be incapable of self-government, he thinks it is pertinent to ask: "Would they kill any more of each other than we have killed, or allowed to be killed of them?" In his January article he mentioned the fact that as Judge he had ordered the dismissal of prosecutions against 129 persons who had died in jail. He adds that when he left the vicinity of the Samar massacres in November, 1904, he was prostrated from overwork in trying to dispose properly of the cases of prisoners killed to die in overcrowded jails. He asks if it is over-crowded jails. He asks if it is over-crowded jails. He asks if it is over-crowded jails.

"In a government by the people," he says, "the people should be able to get at all the facts concerning all the issues submitted to them in a political campaign. When a government by the people starts out to colonize in distant lands the main body of the evidence they will get calculated to throw light on the wisdom and justice of continuing the experiment will, of necessity, come through official sources—that is, from officials of the party which, being in power, seeks to continue itself in power—and will, therefore, be one-sided, expert testimony. No matter how high the character of the responsible heads of such colonial government, they will let nothing go that will hurt the Administration."

It is added with extreme force, which everybody can appreciate, that the welfare of the Philippines will always be a side issue with the American people. The Manila Chamber of Commerce said to the Taft party in August, 1905: "The country is in a state of financial collapse." Former Governor Ide said last November that annexation had killed the Spanish market for sugar and tobacco, and our tariff shuts these products from the United States market.

For all this it is insisted by many that our occupation has increased the prosperity of the islands as never before.

fore. This is not only denied by witnesses on the ground, including many of our own people, but there is the further fact that the desire for independence is universal among the Filipinos. Senator Newlands says "there can be no permanent friendliness between the Filipinos and the Americans." Senator Dubois says "the natives hate us cordially, and unless some radical change can be brought about the hatred will grow more and more intense." The Filipinos thought they had a strong case against Spain, but they like us less than they did the Spaniards.

The inquiry of our tariff with reference to the Philippines is set forth. Senator Lodge is quoted as saying that we make no hypocritical pretense of being interested in the Philippines solely on account of others, but that we believe in trade expansion. Experience, however, has shown that the Philippines do not pay. Our expenses on their account are estimated at $300,000,000. Secretary Taft admitted on October 25, 1904, that up to that time they had been more than $200,000,000. Besides this the cost to the Philippines is enormous, and they are not satisfied with the sort of government they are getting. An American newspaper is quoted as saying that experience has shown our unwillingness to govern the Philippines.

Mr. Blount thinks that in these Territories an autonomous government, such as New Mexico now has, could be carried out in the northern part of Luzon. These Territories might ultimately enter as States into the Federated Philippine Republic. The United States could make a treaty securing the neutralization of the islands, as has been done in Europe in the cases of Switzerland and Belgium. Mr. Blount sees no objection to announcing this programme now, for he thinks it would show a way out of the present tangle. He is certainly right in desiring to see us make an honorable exit of this unfortunate Philippine experiment, and the plan he submits is worth a trial.

Edmund Tryon Halsey.
Louisville owes much to the memory of Edmund Tryon Halsey. The enterprise, energy and ability of his early manhood were largely the sources of two of the most important business institutions of Louisville. He helped to found a great wagon factory and a powerful trust company, but when he helped launch them they were on a more modest scale than the scale of today. But most big things start in a small way and grow and its takes foresight and pluck to conceive and establish the right concerns. He had the foresight and the pluck. In other directions he aided in the upbuilding of Louisville. He had ideas and he put them into effect. That he did not die one of the richest men in Louisville is due to one of those strange tricks which fortune is wont to play upon mortals. Rich or poor, the esteem in which he was held would have been as great, for his affability, sunniness, grit and ability were inseparable from himself, and these virtues draw men to a man.

Importation of Labor Upheld.
Attorney General Bonaparte has just promulgated a ruling that lithographers may be engaged in Europe and brought to this country despite the contract labor laws. The case which led to the Attorney's General's decision grew directly out of the strike of lithographers, which has been in force since August 1, 1906. The issue was forced by a large lithographing establishment of the East. First the company inserted advertisements for lithographic artists three times a week for four weeks in twelve newspapers published in eight of the largest cities. No men were to be found. With this circumstance as proof of its inability to obtain the desired lithographers, the company proceeded to make a contract with two men in Nuremberg, Germany, under an agreement to give them free transportation and employment for one year. The laws against the importation of foreign labor are very strict and the violator is subject to a fine of $1,000; so, much depended upon the test case thus begun. The striking lithographers and their friends of America made a strong fight against the company. The Commissioner of Immigration decided that the men should be excluded and deported to Germany. The matter was carried to the Attorney General.

Now, the contract labor law provides, first, that professional actors, artists, lecturers and other persons belonging to learned professions may be brought into this country from abroad under contract, and second, that skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be obtained in the United States. The Attorney General analyzes all the testimony given—and there was much of it from both sides—and reaches the conclusion that the aliens are entitled to admission to the country and the assumption of the positions for which they were engaged. He bases the judgment upon a peculiar ground—the scarcity of labor. He thinks this is so clear that it is unnecessary to go into the first and determine whether or not lithographers are or are not artists. All the testimony convinces him of the scarcity of lithographers in the United States. In fact, this is uncontradicted. The figures make plain to him that if every striker went back to work the demand for lithographers would still be far greater than the supply. The scarcity exists, strike or no strike.

This decision is important and far-reaching. Besides its probable effect of compelling a settlement of the lithographers' strike, it may have a powerful bearing upon other labor controversies to arise in the future. As far as concerns the special issue in question the decision seems wholly sound and logical. The facts presented in the testimony laid before him justify the construction of the law as the Attorney General construes it.

Our Timber and Our Tips.
Two great public questions were discussed in June. At Denver the Public Lands Convention considered the forestry policy of the Federal Government. In New York the waters sat in judgment upon the tipping system. If the relative importance of forestry and tipping may be judged by the degrees of heat with which the two subjects have been discussed in the public prints for the last fortnight, the first question before the patriotic citizens of our Republic is not "ah! we prevent flood and famine by muzzling the timber gobbler," but "shall we prevent famine and bloodshed by tipping our waters?"

DOFF THE KHAKI

First Regiment Boys Return From Jamestown.

WEEK OF ACTIVITY IN SIGHT—SEEING LEAVES THEM TIRED.

LITTLE OR NOTHING TO MAR JOY OF TRIP.

RIOT STORY BRANDED FALSE.

Fagged out from an exciting week of eight-daying, coupled with intermittent periods of military duty and discipline, the First Kentucky Regiment returned home yesterday morning after seven days spent at the Jamestown Exposition. The first and second sections of the regiment, carrying Louisville's contingent of soldiers boys, 500 strong, drew into the city yesterday morning. The first section reached the city at 7:15, and at 10:15 a. m. the second relay unloaded its cargo of khaki-clad humanity at the L. and N. station. The national guardsmen, weary from their long ride and from the effects of the week of strenuous activity at the Virginia Exposition, and with one accord a rush was made for home—and something to eat.

Without a single exception the trip was an enjoyable one, and from the lowliest private to Col. W. B. Haldeman, who commanded the Louisville legion, all announced having enjoyed a royal good time.

Discipline Relaxed.
In order that the State guardsmen might have an opportunity of seeing any of the sights of the city, the strict discipline of the regiment was relaxed. The boys were allowed to go to the city and see the sights, and the strict discipline of the regiment was relaxed. The boys were allowed to go to the city and see the sights, and the strict discipline of the regiment was relaxed.

Little Sickness In Camp.
Outside of several head prostrations, which on dress parade Monday afternoon, when the mercury was in the 90s, were caused by the heat, there was little or no sickness in the camp. The boys were allowed to go to the city and see the sights, and the strict discipline of the regiment was relaxed.

One Admission Fee Only.
The Louisville guardsmen reached the Exposition site on Monday, their trip carrying them within 100 feet of the camp site. Tents were already erected for their reception and guard duty was immediately established. By pre-arrangement, each member of the local companies, who were to be in the Exposition grounds upon the payment of fifty cents, and thereafter was permitted the free use of the grounds for the entire week without the further payment of an admission fee.

Guard Mount Trying Ordeal.
With the single exception of guard mount, the boys had no complaint to make of military discipline. Twice during the week the regiment was drilled, and twice the militiamen were called upon to go through dress parade. The drill was a success, and the boys were well prepared for the ordeal of the guard mount. The boys were allowed to go to the city and see the sights, and the strict discipline of the regiment was relaxed.

Trouble Story False, They Say.
According to officers of the First Regiment, the story sent out from Norfolk that the boys of the First Kentucky Regiment had been in a riot at the Exposition is entirely false. The boys were well behaved and the strict discipline of the regiment was relaxed.

ONE WAY TO SOLVE THE LABOR QUESTION.
[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal.]
I have just read your article headed "The Demand for Labor" in the issue of the 9th inst. I beg to say we don't want to get any more labor through immigration.
Let the police department in every city, town and village go to work (and keep at work) hunting and arresting the thousands of negroes—men and women—who have left the farms and come to town, where it is so easy to live without work.
I will venture to say there are no less than 5,000 idle negro men and women in this city at the moment. This is not because they cannot find employment, but because they don't want to work and will not work.
Arrest them, send them to the workhouse, force them to crack rock, keep this up, and soon the idle negro will keep the farm to the workhouse.
Let our police officers go around through the alleys, the Redlight district and "barber-houses" and arrest every idle negro who is found there. They will have no trouble in finding thousands of worthless, lazy, trifling negroes who, having left the farms, are now in town, where it is so easy to live without work.
Arrest them, send them to the workhouse, force them to crack rock, keep this up, and soon the idle negro will keep the farm to the workhouse.

PFAFFINGER CASE GOES OVER TO NEXT WEDNESDAY.
Action In Police Court Yesterday Morning Taken On Motion of Attorney For defense.

Upon a motion of the defense in the case of W. L. Pfaffinger, accused of securing more than $15,000 from the Louisville National Banking Company by false pretenses, a continuance was granted July 17 in Police Court yesterday morning.

Mr. Pfaffinger was represented in court by Attorney W. L. Conkling. Attorney Conkling gave no reason for asking a continuance and none was asked, as it is customary to grant such a request upon the return of a writ.

Pfaffinger was arrested Tuesday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by Frederick Thayer Harris, and was released a few hours later under bond of $5,000, with Nathan Marx, of 181 East Main street, as surety. But he has brought acceptance of the bond, and has also brought standing notes which are said to have been signed jointly with her son. The German Insurance Co. has also brought up against her $32,612.67 on notes of which she and her son were joint signers.

Monday, Her body was taken to Bonnetville, twelve miles north of this city, on Monday morning, for burial. She was eighty-seven years old and is survived by several children.

THE NEW ALBANY, LANESVILLE AND CORYDON PLANK ROAD COMPANY yesterday filed its annual report, as required under the law, in the office of the County Recorder at New Albany. The report shows the capital stock to be $50,000, while the gross receipts for last year were $7,744.32. It also shows that the company had paid out $4,749.94 for the expenses of operating the road, and in addition had declared an annual dividend of $3,994.38.

This is one of two thoroughfares in the State of Indiana that exact toll, the other being the New Albany and Paulsboro. The company was organized over fifty years ago, and in its time was one of the best-paying investments of Indiana. During the last few years its revenue has steadily decreased, and its managers, as will be seen by the report, to declare handsome dividends, this company, last meeting of the Board of Directors two years ago, adopted a resolution providing that automobiles and bicyclists should be charged a prohibitive toll for the reason that these machines threaten the horses of the patrons of the road.

TWO SUITS FOR DIVORCE.

The second suit was filed by Mrs. Shaw against Mr. Shaw, praying that she be granted a decree of divorce, and that he be awarded the grounds of the action and in-laws.

DEATH OF EACH HASTENED BY EXTREME HEAT.

MEMBERS OF FAMILIES FIND BOTH DYING IN BED.

WILL BE BURIED TO-MORROW.

Two deaths, believed to have been hastened by the extreme heat of Monday and Tuesday up to the time of the storm, were reported in Clark County, Ind., yesterday morning. One was that of Mrs. Cora A. Perry, wife of Thomas W. Perry, clerk of the Board of Public Works, and the other that of Mrs. Lucinda Hardin, whose home was one mile north of Bonnetville. Each was in her usual health on the evening of Monday night, but both died about an hour. An unusual coincidence is that each had a sister die suddenly and the husband of Mrs. Hardin was also found dead.
